Traditional Hardwood Sash Windows

Enjoy the beauty of traditional hardwood sash windows that offer an authentic period style combined with modern manufacturing technology for ultimate thermal performance and comfort. By choosing traditional hardwood sash windows from Sean Doyle Windows it does not mean compromising on insulation or comfort.

Sean Doyle Windows has introduced a variety of new modifications and enhancements to the popular hardwood sash windows that will have particular appeal for sensitive replacement projects in historic and listed properties, and traditionally designed new buildings.

Our sliding hardwood sash window is made with timber from sustainable sources and has an 'A' rating for energy efficiency.

We have combined traditional joinery techniques with the latest glazing and draft proofing technology to create an elegant window that achieves the highest levels of energy efficiency, creating a more comfortable living space. The traditional hardwood sash window from Sean Doyle Windows is an ideal solution for a like-for-like replacement and can either be installed as a full frame replacement or into existing box frames.

Our hardwood sash window is available in either single or double glazed and each one is handcrafted in our specialist joinery facility.

Each component in our hardwood sash window collection is independently accredited. All our products are tested to Irish standards to guarantee you peace of mind.

The Best Quality Timber

Sean Doyle Windows hardwood windows are manufactured using high quality hardwood timber. The main types being Iroko and Mahogany, both of which give excellent durability. Our hardwood windows are available in casement and sliding sash options.

Choice

All products are made to order but use standard sections to help achieve certified performance requirements. Different profiles, glass and paint or stain colours are available to help you achieve the look and style required.

When it comes to sizes and patterns, we can produce exactly what you need for individual projects. Although we show some selected sizes to help with proportions, our flexible manufacturing process allows us to meet your size and pattern requirements.

Advanced Specification

Sean Doyle Windows products are manufactured to incorporate the latest technology whether through the use of engineered timber, dry vented glazing or BBA window energy ratings.

As an Irish manufacturer Sean Doyle Windows take pride in being able to supply quality products with the shortest lead times possible.

Each component in our Hardwood window collection is independently accredited with the security-backed PAS certificate. All our Hardwood windows achieve PAS-24 standards, which guarantees the highest security. All our products are tested to Irish standards to guarantee you peace of mind.

Hardwood Timber Sash Windows

The design of our vertical sliding sash window is the product of an extensive collaboration between our technicians and consultant architects to ensure that our box sash reproduces, as faithfully as possible the simple grace of traditional sash windows.

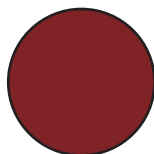

In particular, the dimensions of our sash frames, meeting rails and glazing bars have been made slim, with traditional mouldings subtly modified to suit modern construction technology.

To carry the extra weight of double glazed units, our sliding sashes are hung with weights or spiral balance retaining the long proven reliability of simple counterbalance weights.

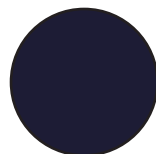

Quadruple draught strips stop rattles, and extremely high insulation glazing units minimise heat loss and down draughts. Hardwood timber and very careful attention to detail, minimise the swelling and warping that causes jamming on windows of lesser quality during wet weather.

Casement

A high performance casement window in a choice of frame and sash profiles to match other products whilst retaining the flush-line traditional appearance of casement to frame.

Designed for maximum flexibility of opening types and casement sizes. Hinge systems are of quality manufacture to exacting specifications with a high degree of quality control. Casement closure is by single locking handle operating a multi-point espagnolette with night vent keeper position.

Made to measure, no standard sizes as virtually any pattern is possible within the parameter guide shown. Gothic patterns are available in standard module widths.
